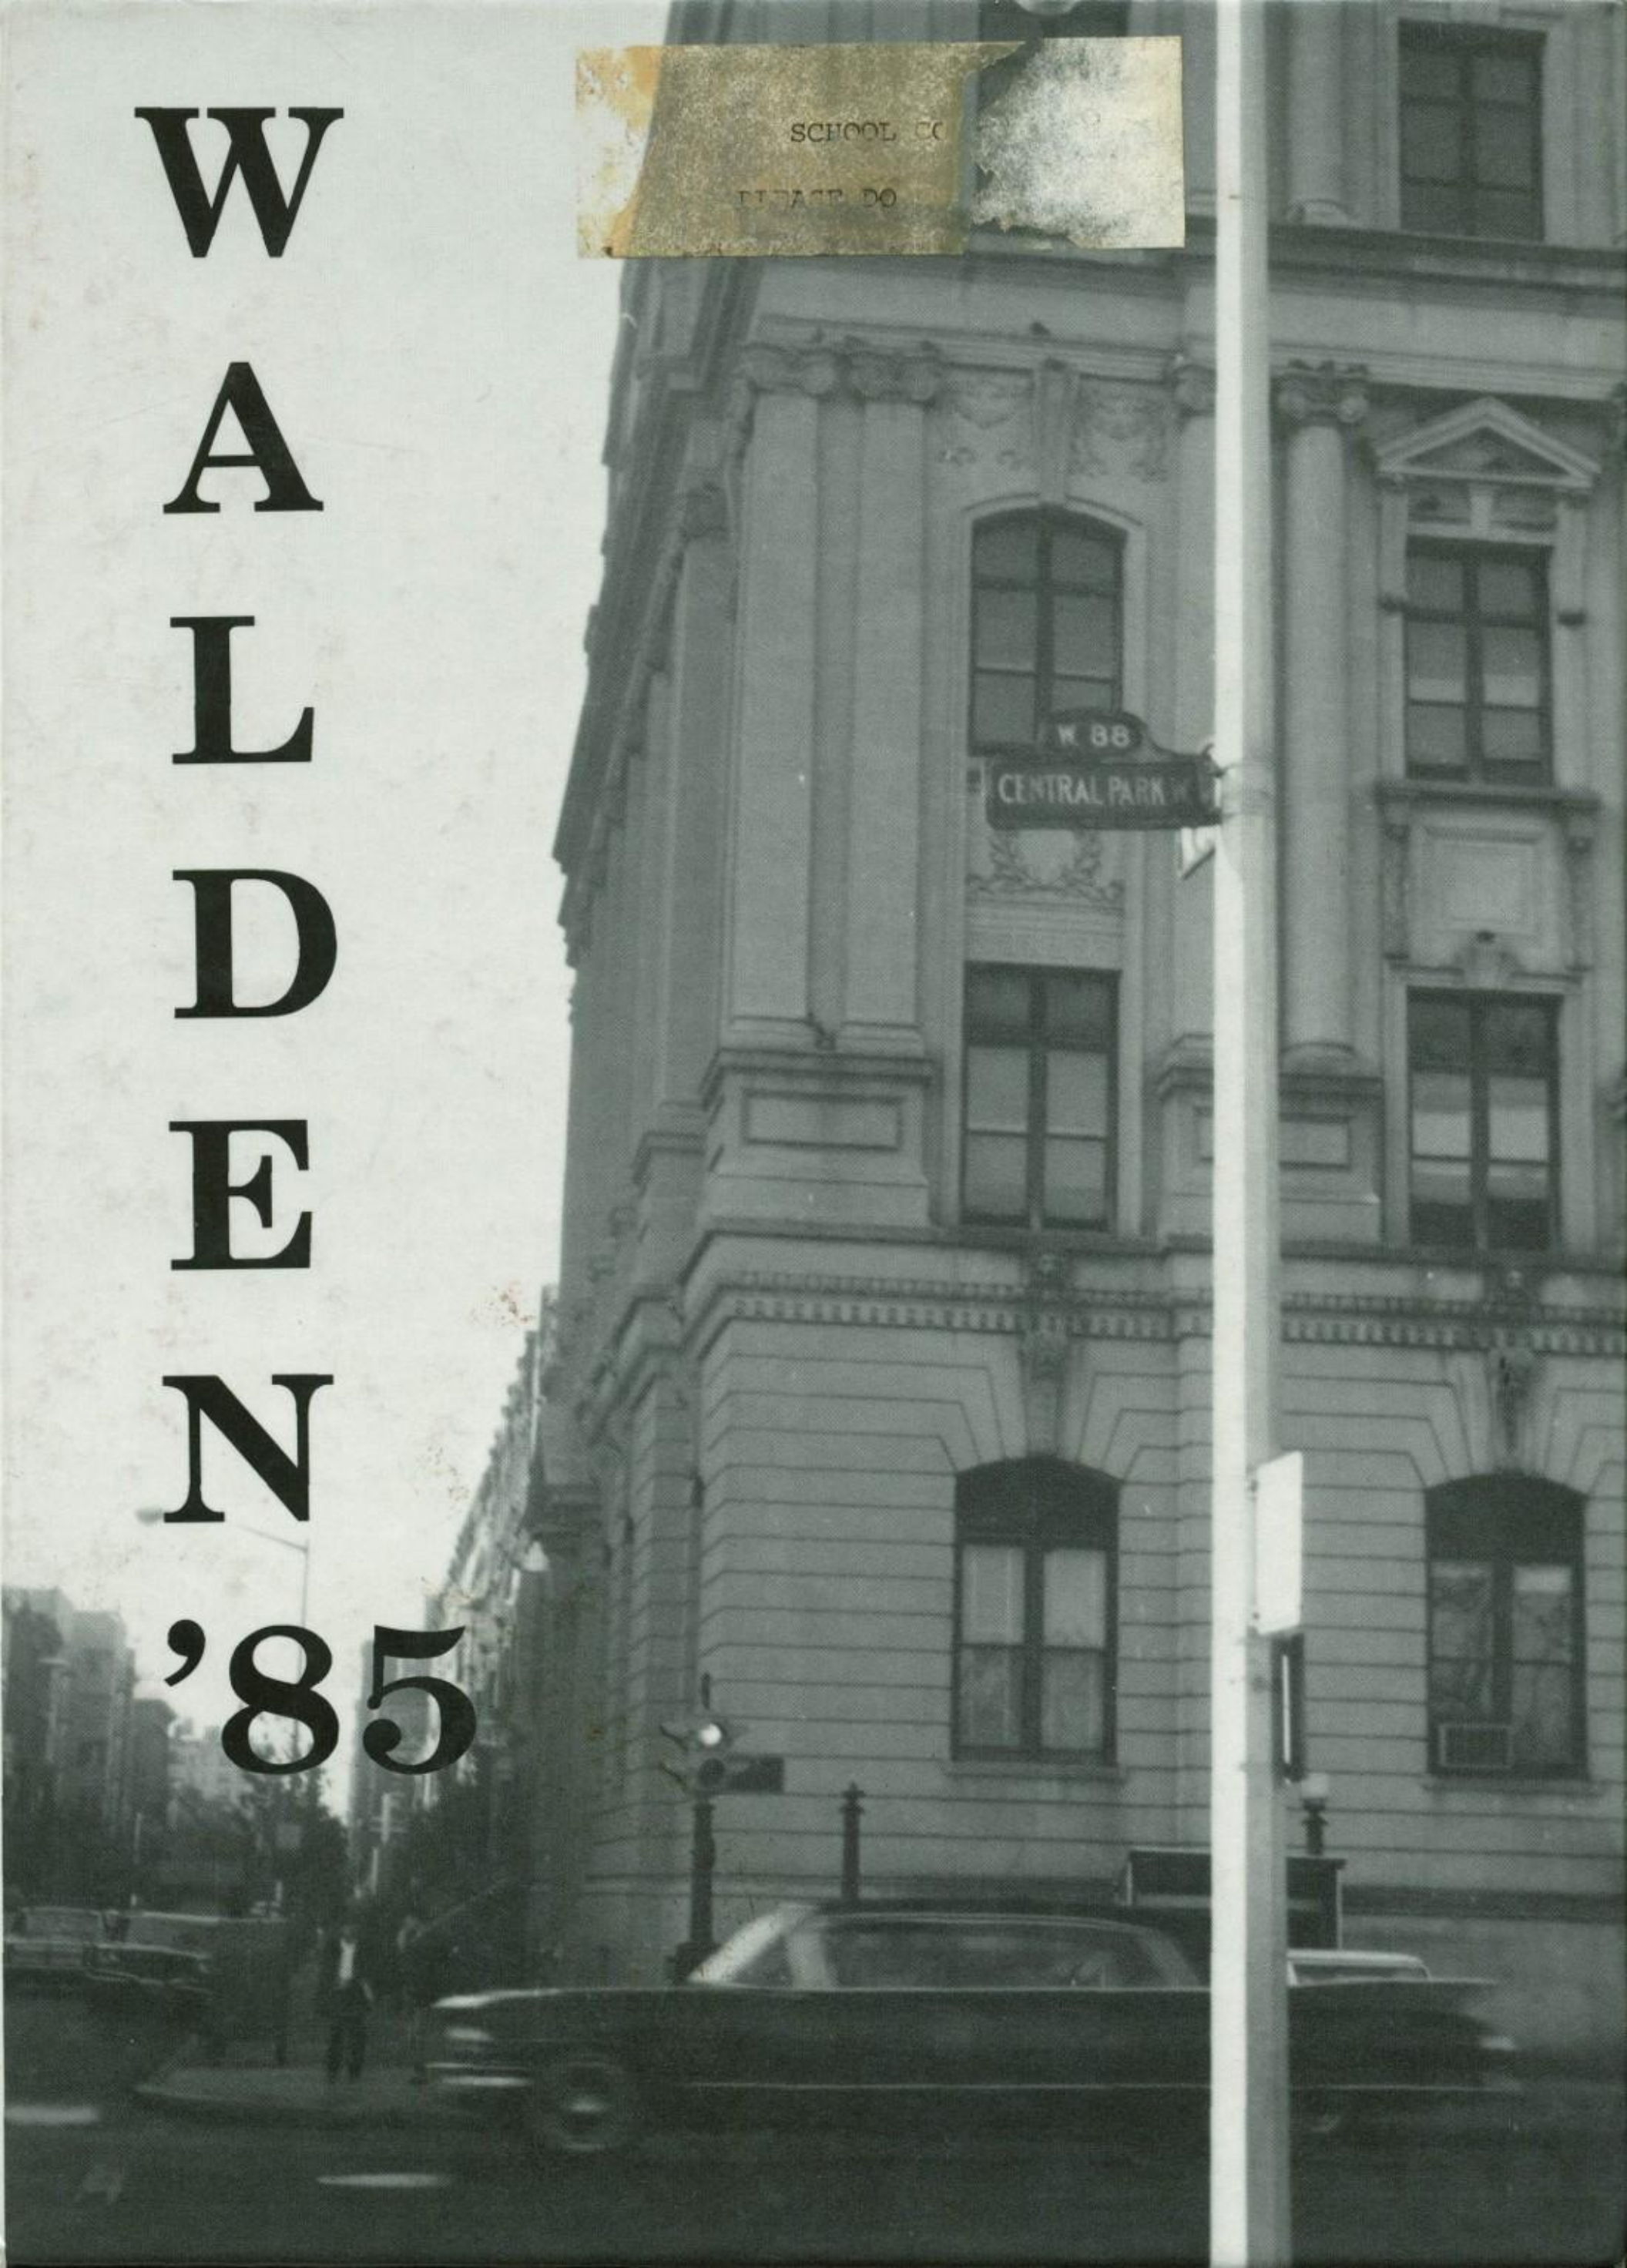
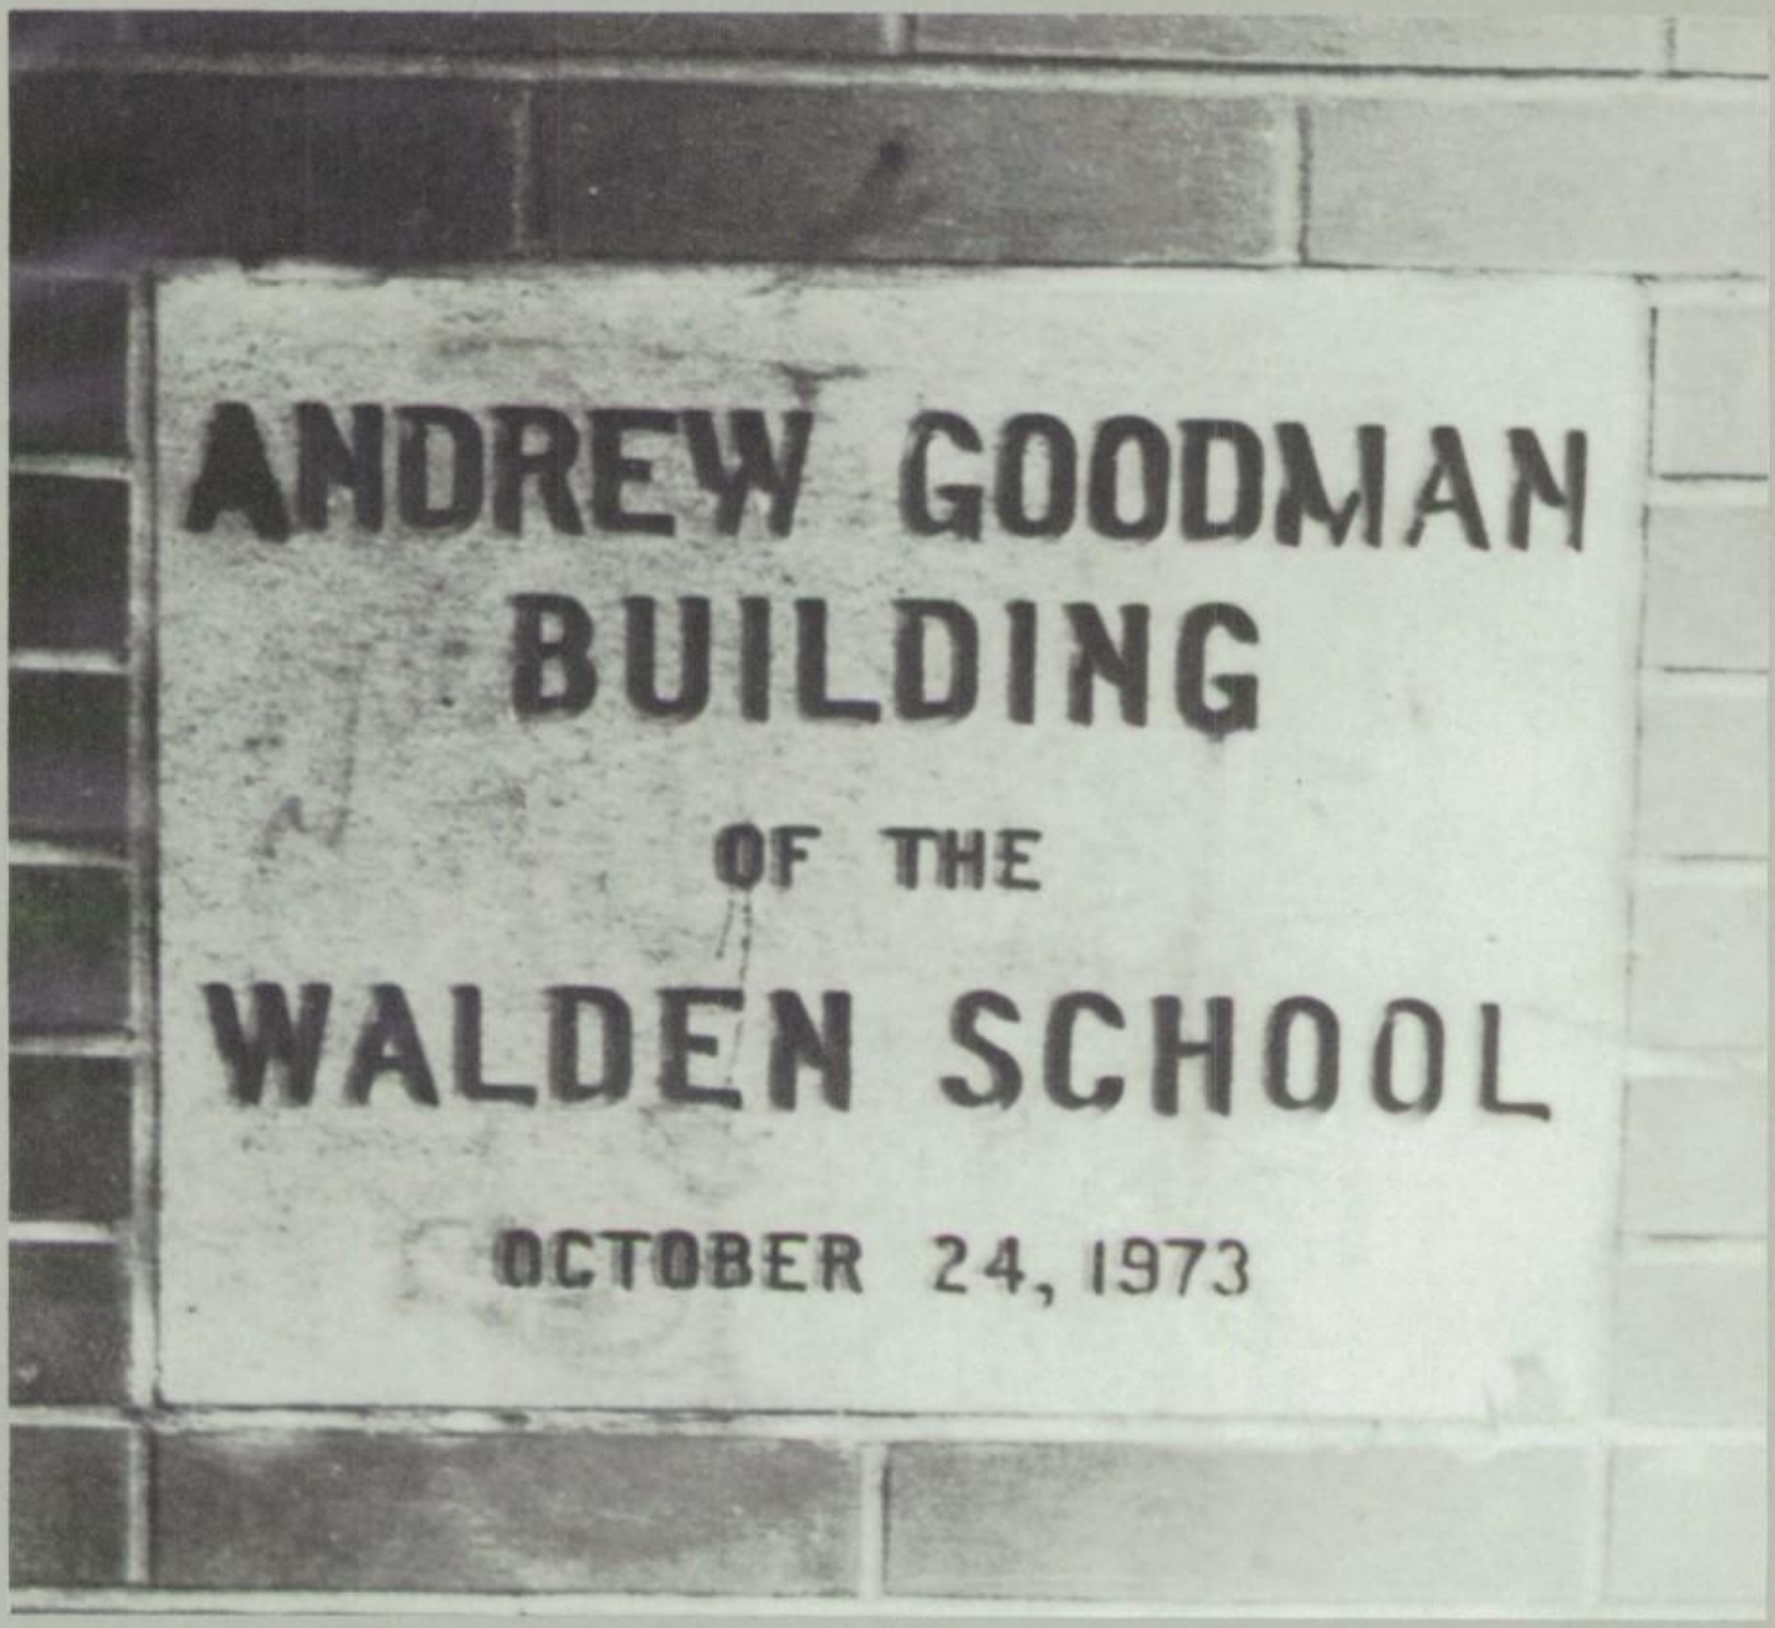
WALDEN '85



from old to new . . .



Andrew Goodman attended Walden from nursery school on, as did his brothers. His uncle William currently sits on the board.

Extremely active in the civil rights movement of the early 60's, Andrew Goodman was a member of the SNCC (Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee) and participated in the "freedom riding" that was going on at the time. The freedom riders were volunteers who rode through the South on racially integrated buses in an effort to break the segregation of interstate travel.

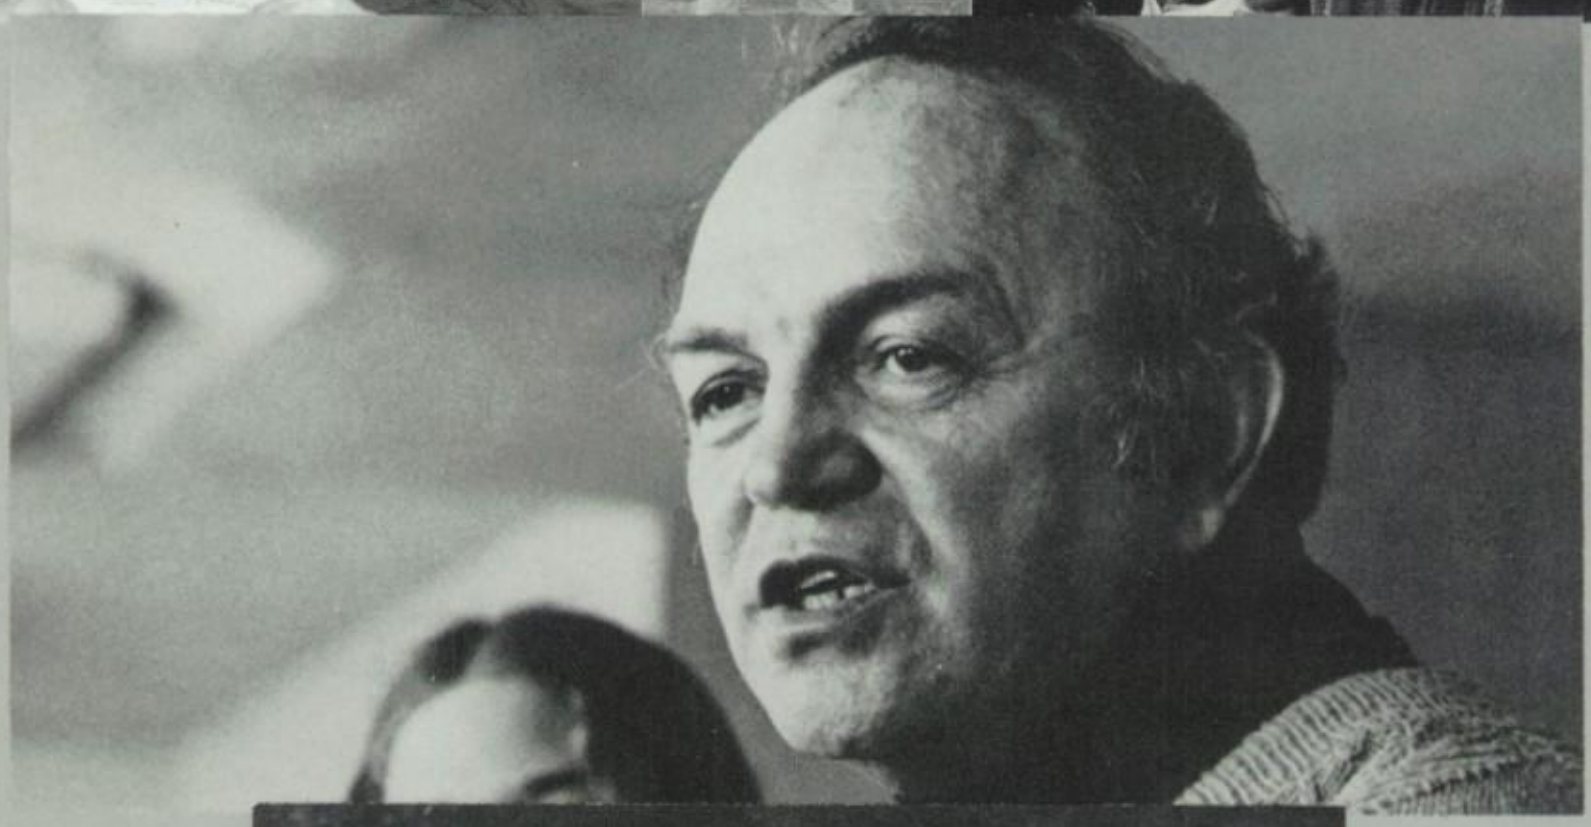
"Again and again in Mississippi and elsewhere, the FBI had stood by, while civil rights workers were beaten and jailed, while federal laws were violated," said Howard Zinn in his book A People's History of the United States.

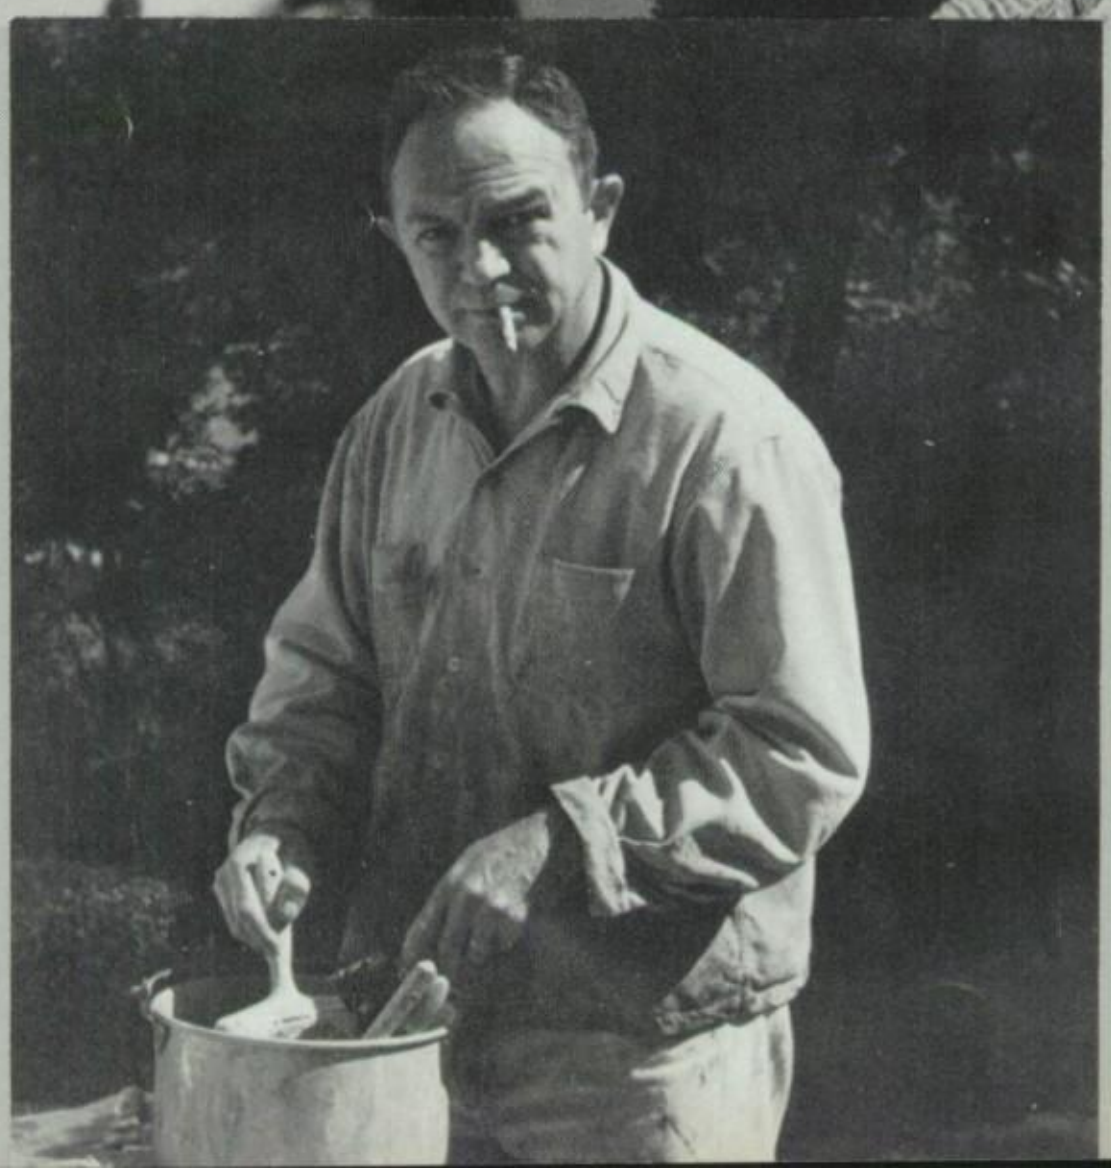
In early June of 1964, Andrew Goodman was arrested while traveling with James Chaney and Michael Schwerner, and put into the jail of the small town they were in at the time. Upon their release late at night, they were set upon, beaten with chains, shot and killed by the town's sheriff, deputy sheriff and others with them.

When Walden added their new building in 1973 they gave it Andrew Goodman's name in memory of his life and all it stood for.

George,

We, the senior class of 1985, would like to dedicate our yearbook to you for all the love and devotion that you have given us over the past fifteen years. Your ability to bring the past to life, through knowledge and sensitivity, has helped us to relate the past to the future. You have been a great inspiration to us all.





George Kirschner was born on November 24, 1920 in Brooklyn, of immigrant parents. He attended school in Brooklyn and graduated from high school in 1938. After high school, he worked in the construction industry until he married his wife Ethyl in 1942, and then entered the Coast Guard in which he spent three years. In 1948, after three years' work in the shipyards, George began work at the Schaefer and then the Rheingold Brewery. In 1965 he took a test for a special adult program at Queens College in to which he was accepted. By this time, he had two children, both of whom were in college. George worked by day and attended school at night, and five years later he graduated Magna Cum Laude with a Bachelor of Arts degree in American History. George was the recipient of the Koppel S. Pinson Prize for outstanding achievement in American History, and also received a fellowship to teach at the College and study for a master's degree.

In an article written for a Schaefer Brewery periodical, George spoke of his future plans, saying. "I hope someday to be sitting on the other side of the desk, teaching history to high school students."

George says he feels "lucky to have landed in Walden School" where he can be "innovative . . . able to teach courses that the students and I are interested in."

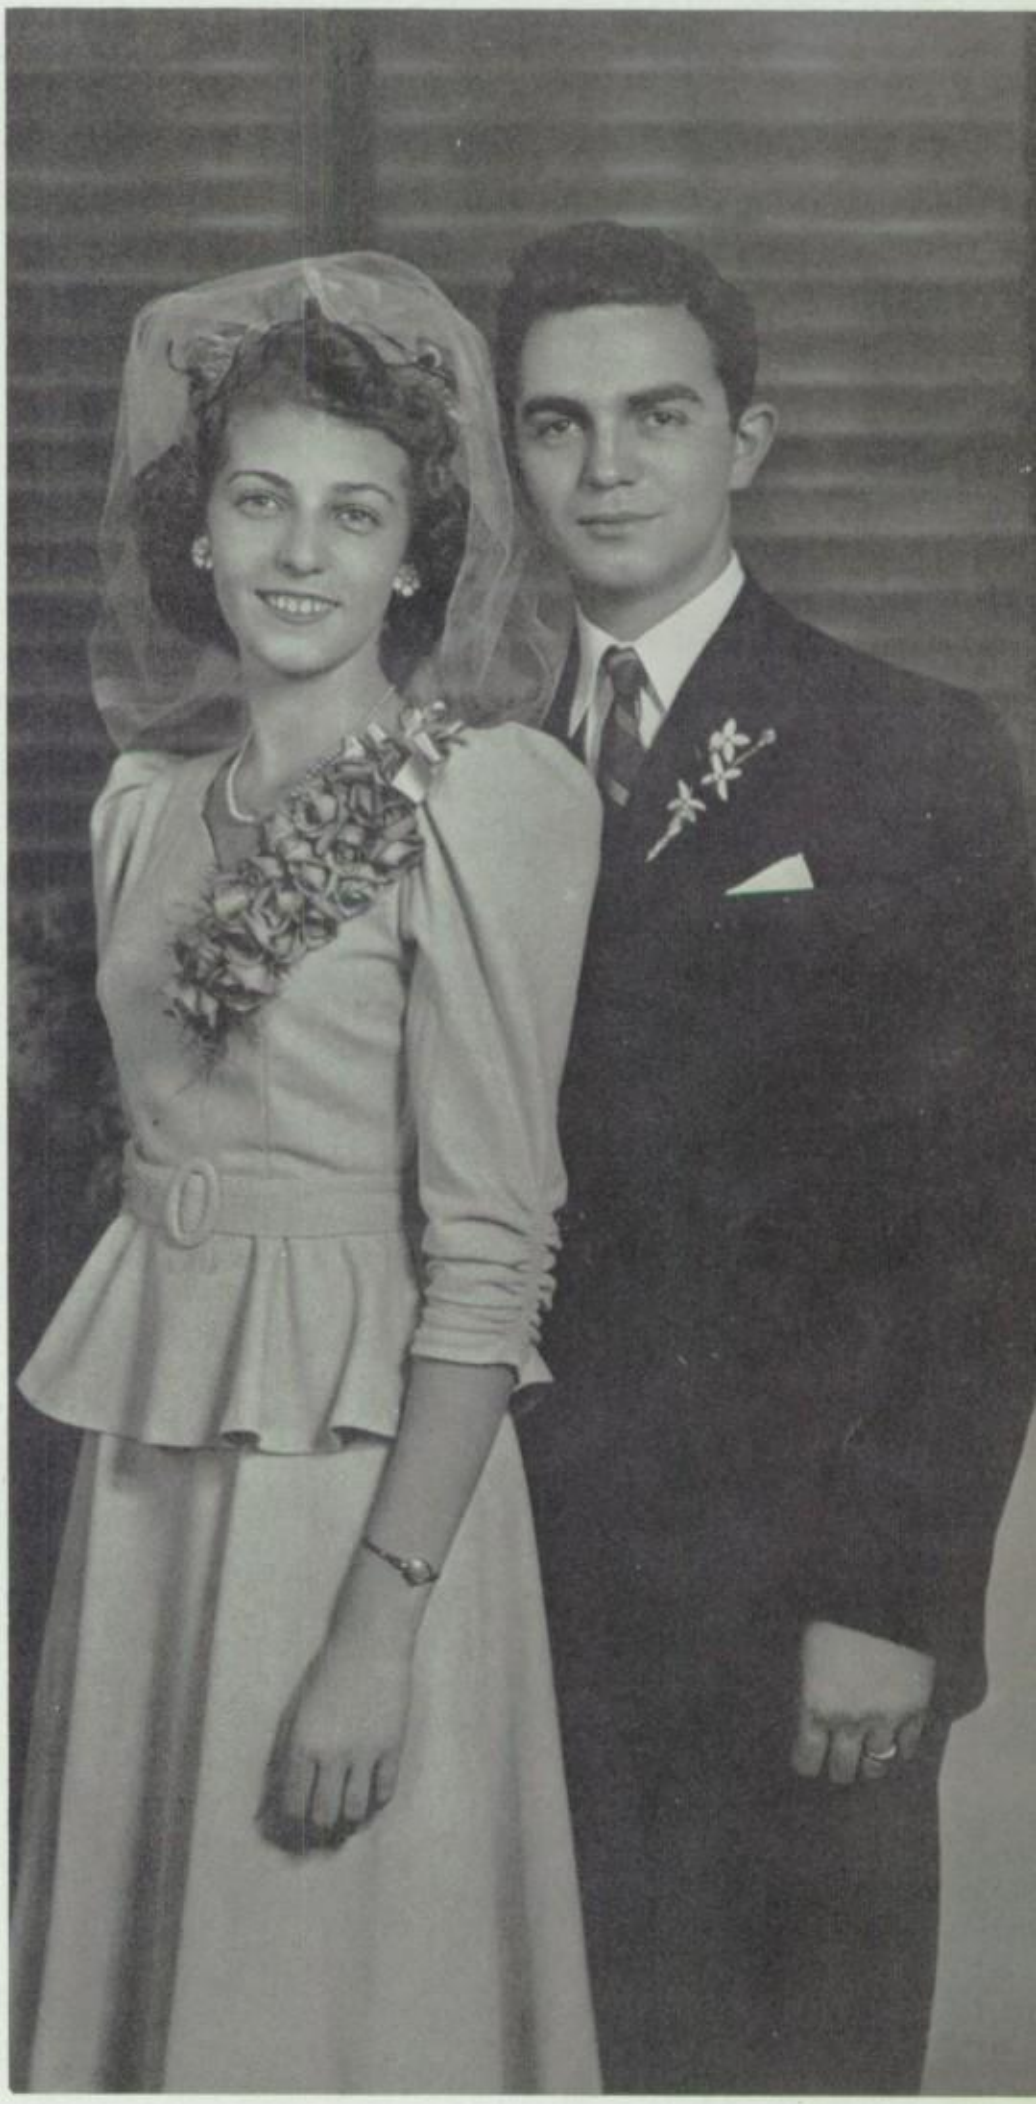
The Schaefer Brewery union newspaper, "The Local 3," was quoted as saying in a 1970 article about George, "Bro. Kirschner insists that there is a need to make the youth of America aware of the struggles of the labor movement . . . it becomes increasingly important to preserve the past glories so that the labor movement can draw upon the best in its history."

George recently said, "I hope to have stimulated students to take a look at their nation and themselves, and to begin to ask themselves what kind of world they want to live in and how they can get involved in making a better world."

George feels that his strength lies in interpreting the past and making it important to the future. "It's nice to feel that you have contributed to students' growth in some way."

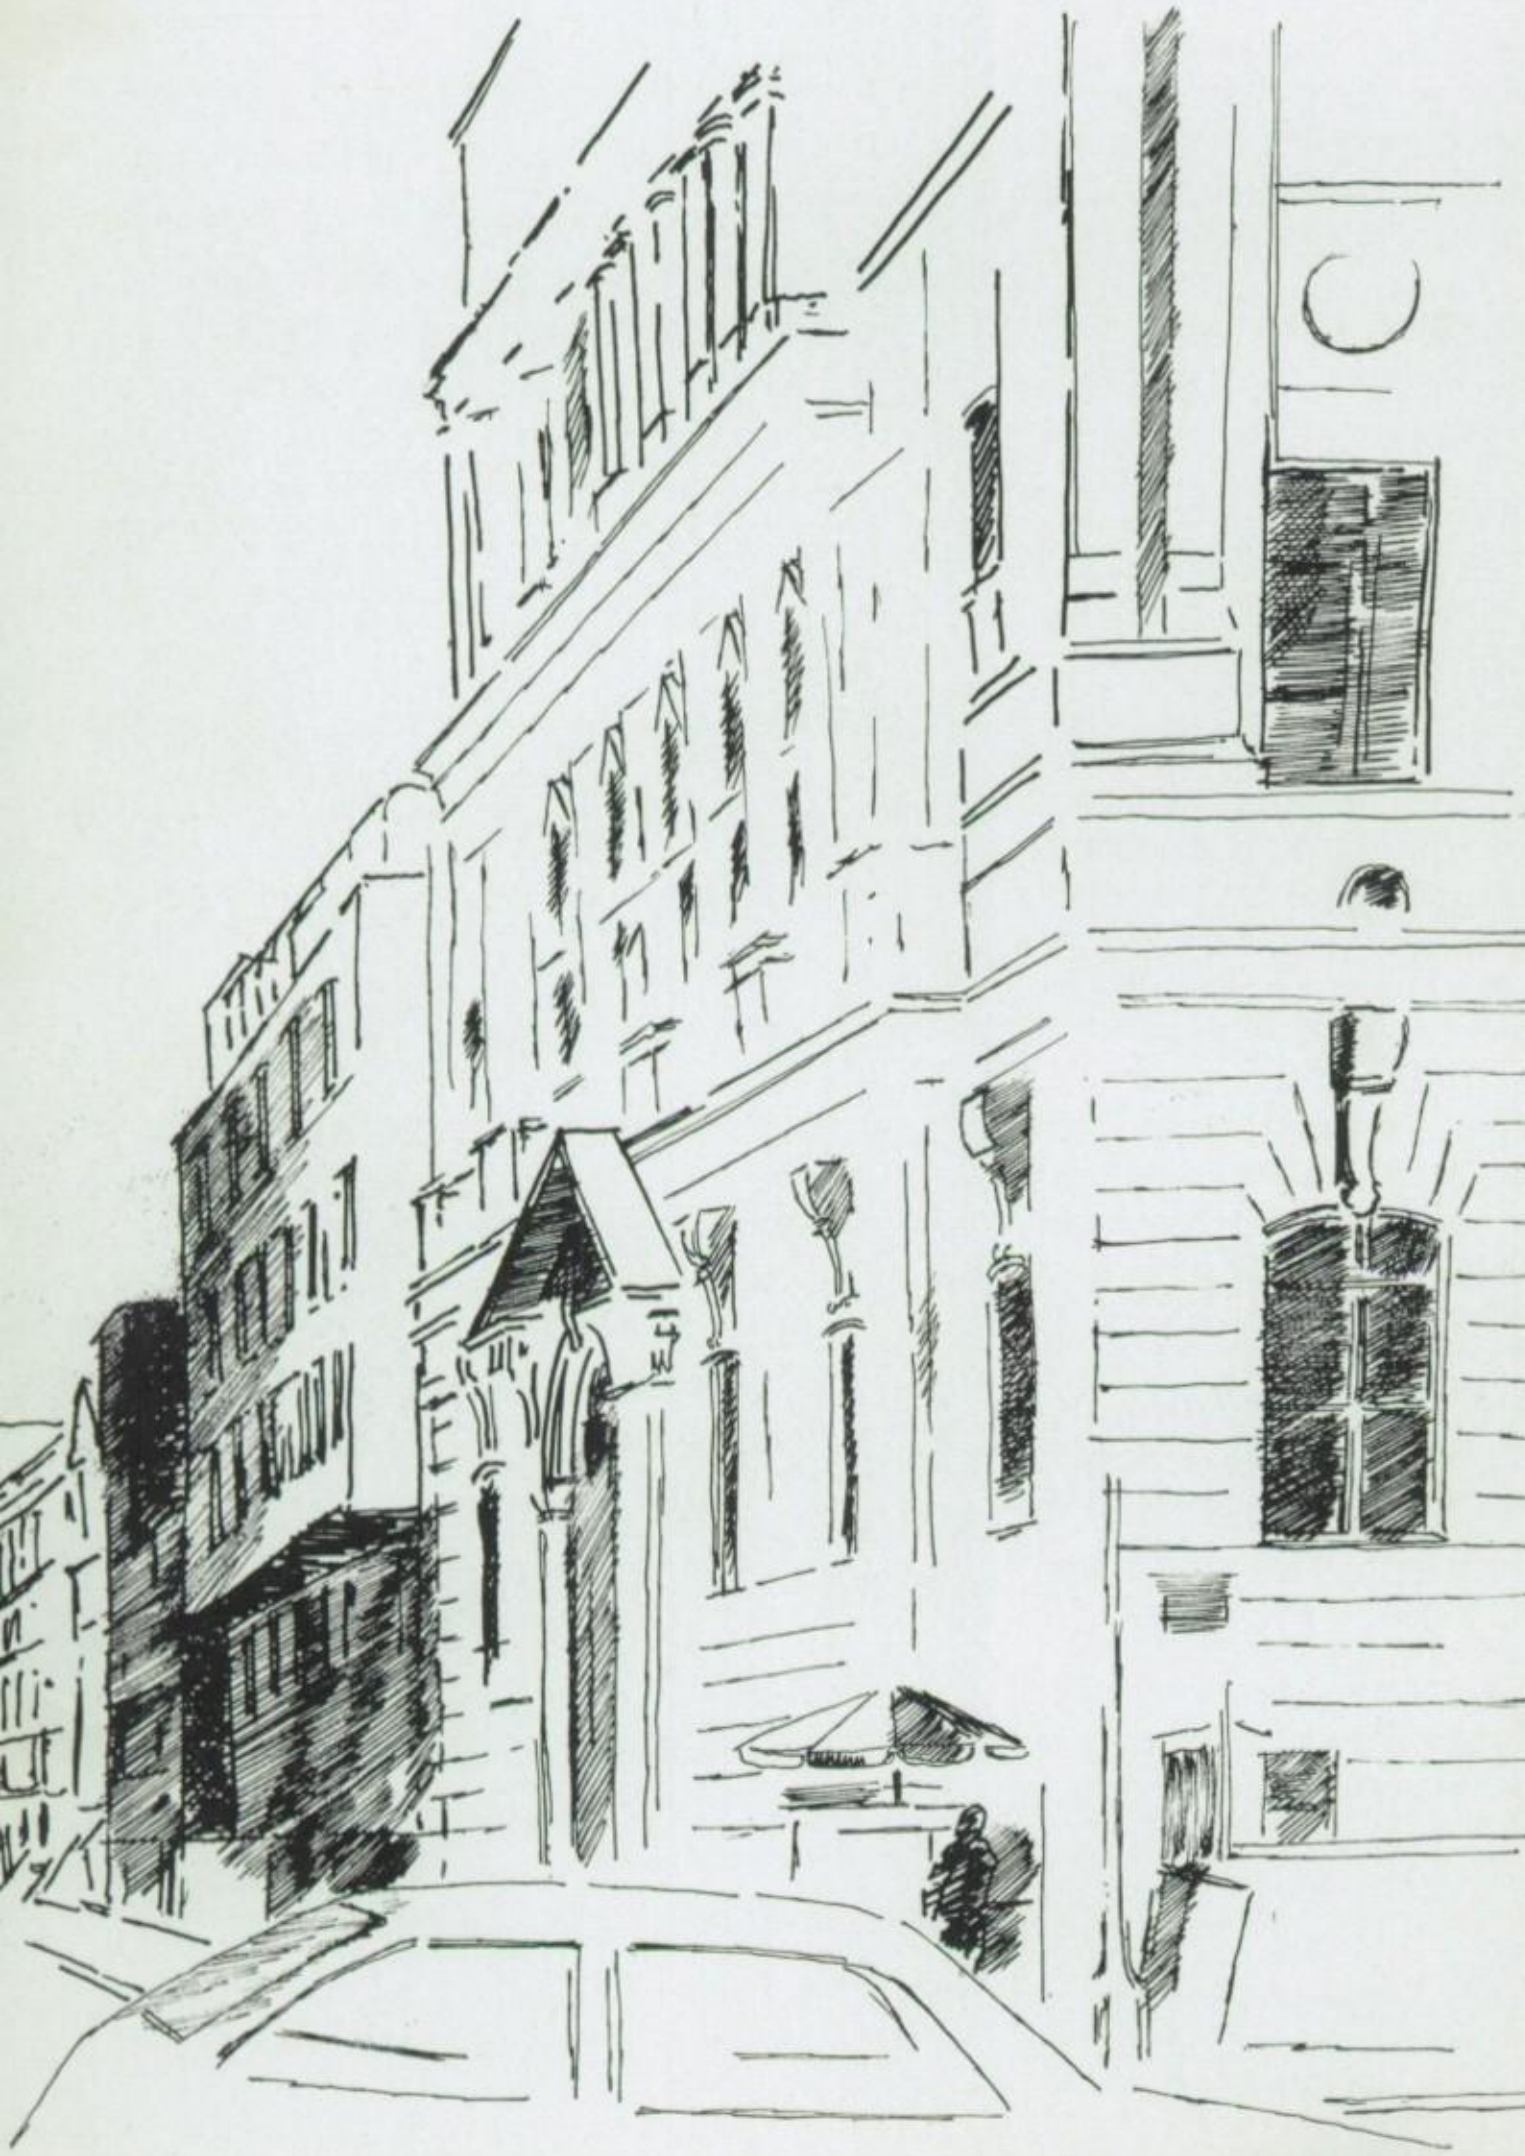
"Other historians relate facts to inform us of facts. You relate them to excite in our hearts an intense hatred of lying, egnorance, hypocrisy, superstition, tyranny and their anger remains even after the memory of the facts has disappeared."

— Diderot on Voltaire
(George's favorite quote)



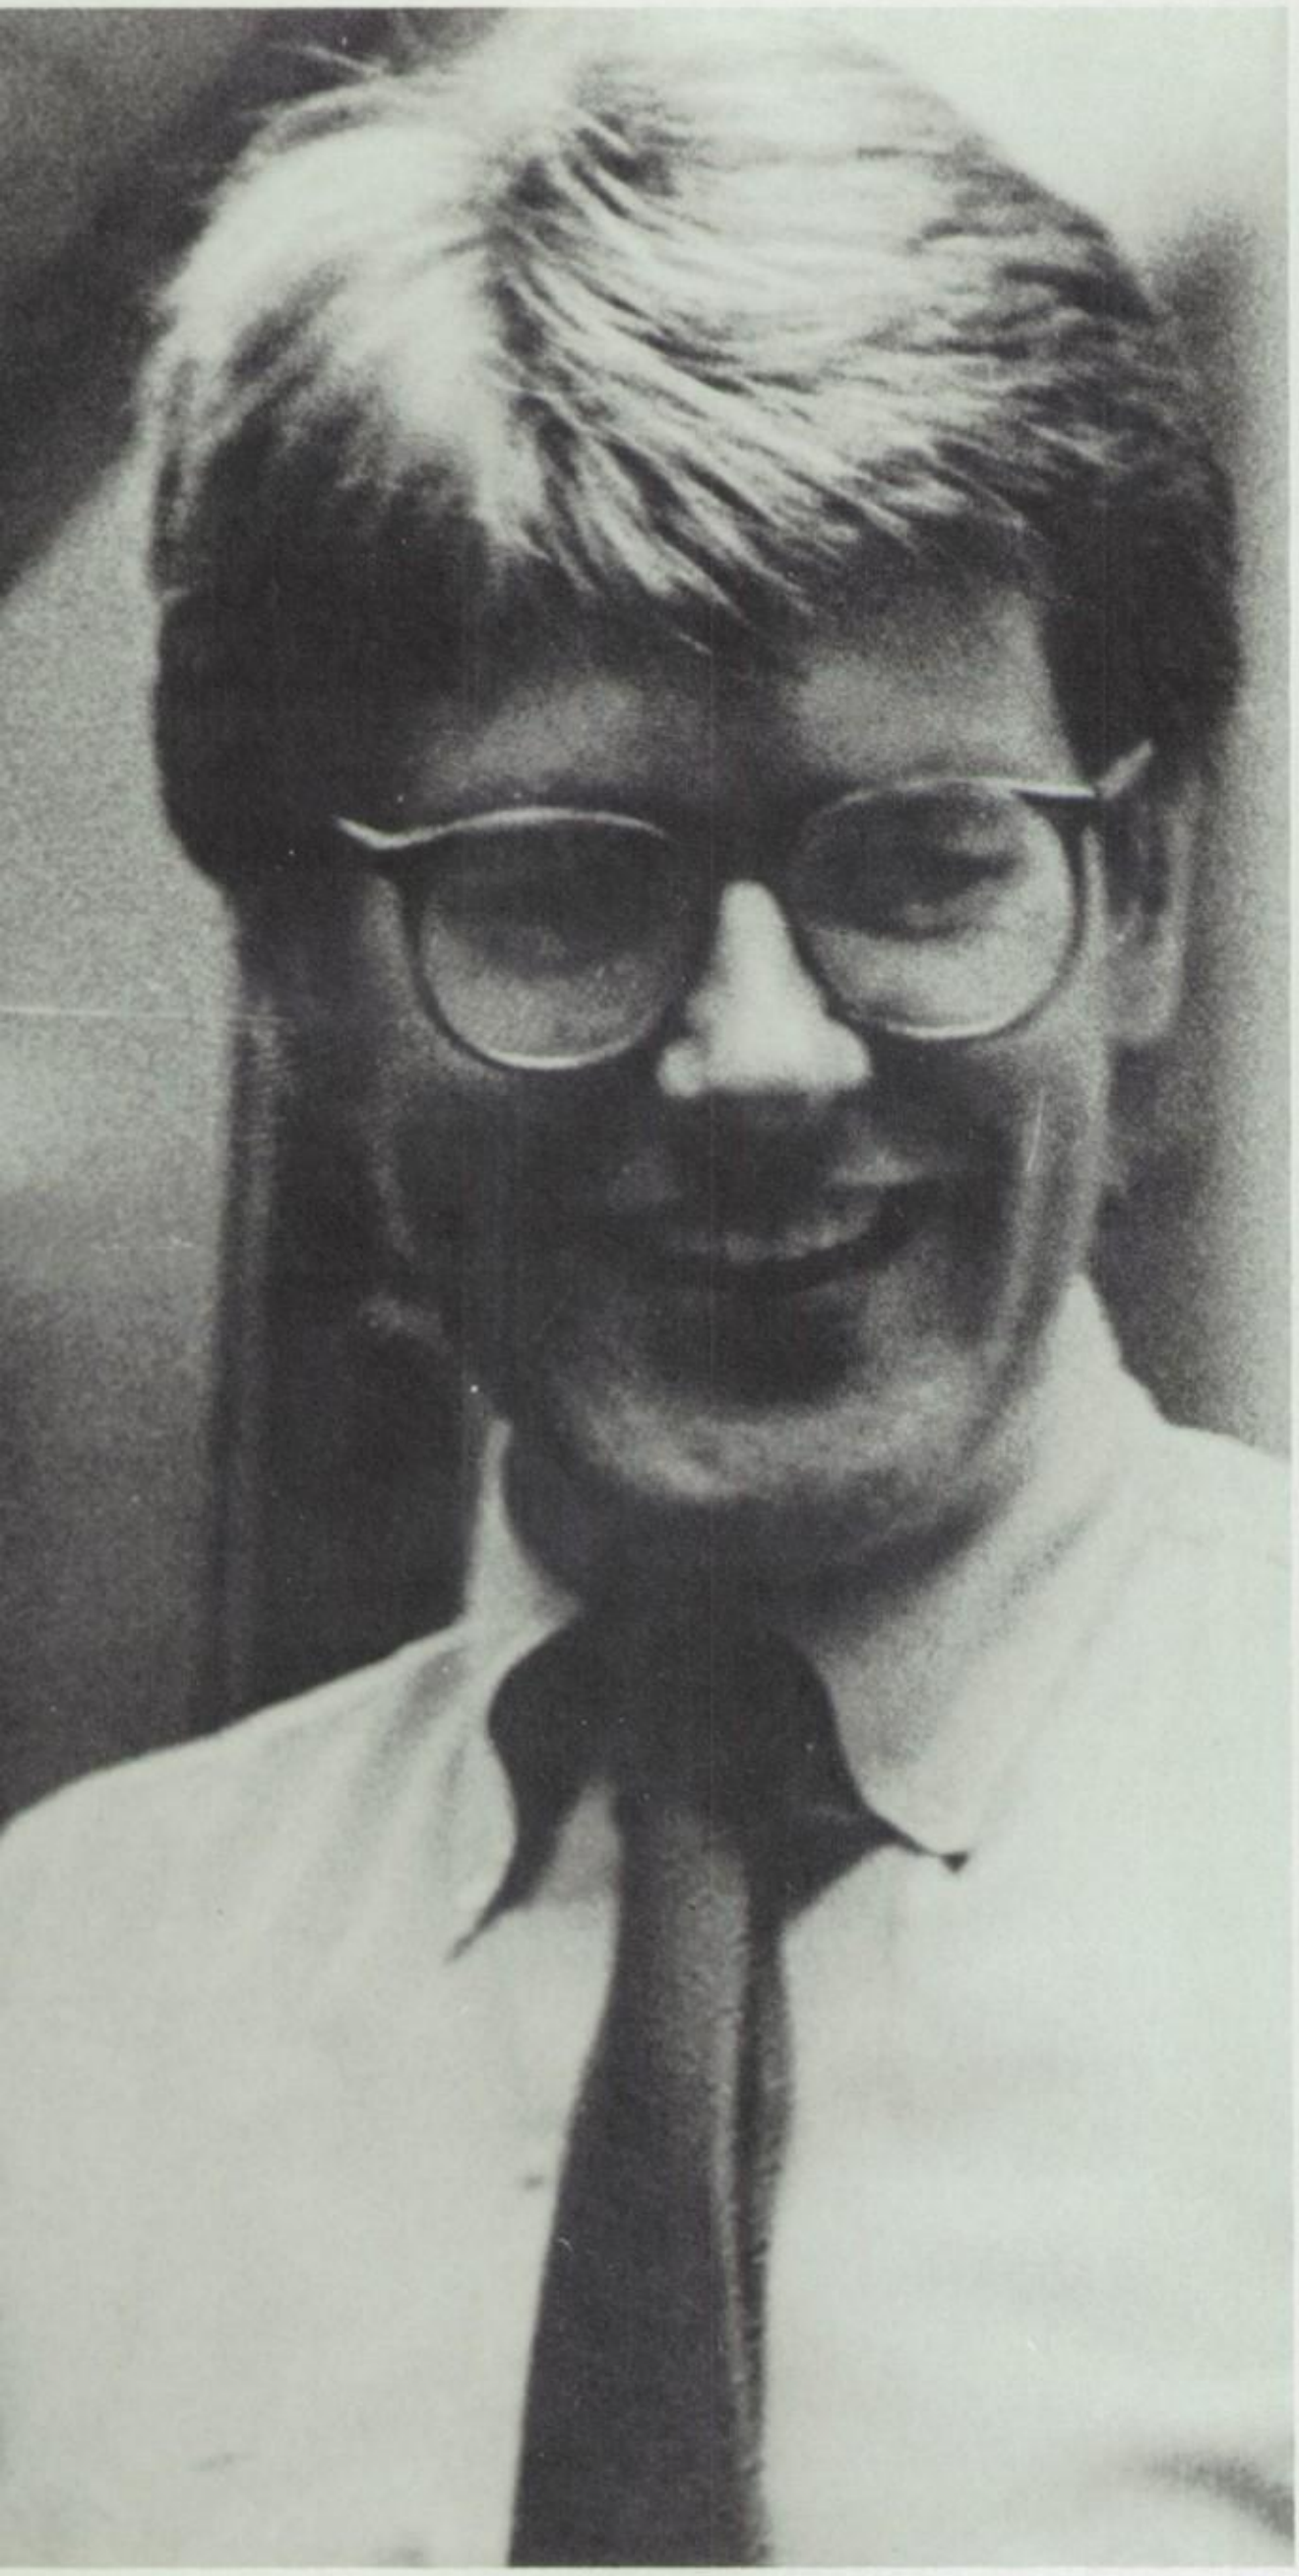
Change — (ch-A-nj) V. To be or cause to be different; after. 2. To exchange for or replace by another. 3. To vary; modify; make different. Example . . .

One of the changing aspects of Walden is the conversion of the old building into a combination of classrooms and apartments. Reconstruction is set to take place over the next few years. But this won't be the first change that this building has undergone . . .



The Progress Club inhabited the corner of 1 West 88th Street in 1908. It sported a pool in the basement, a gambling casino, and catered exclusively to its male members.

The old building, much changed since then, still holds remnants of that time, such as the "P C" mosaic, found in the tiles of the old building foyer, and the stained glass window on the second floor. It will be interesting to see what parts of Walden history chooses to leave behind. Who can guess how many of us will end up a part of the next generation of upper-west siders that will inhabit these new housings. Only time will tell . . .



STEPHEN M. CLEMENT, DIRECTOR OF WALDEN

Along these lines of change . . .

Stephen Clement, former Assistant Headmaster of the Dalton School, has come over to join the Walden family. He brings with him lots of promise, energy, experience and imagination.

"Walden," he says, "is one of the best kept secrets in New York."

How do we define what makes Walden special? What's our mission, what's our goal? These questions, Steve believes, are what have to be asked. Perhaps the question already implies the answer.

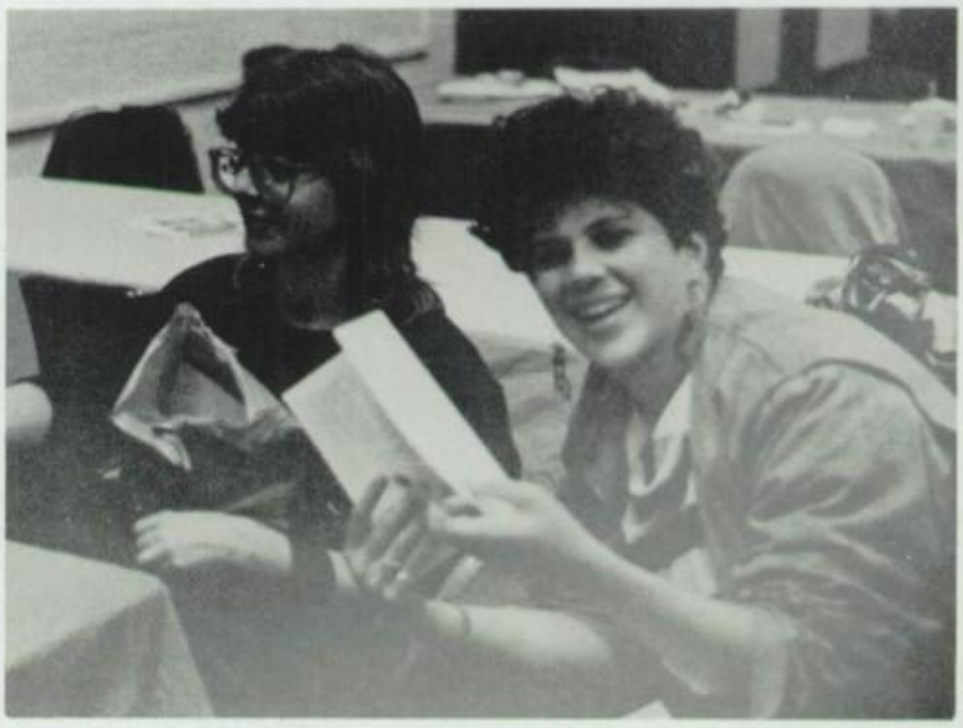
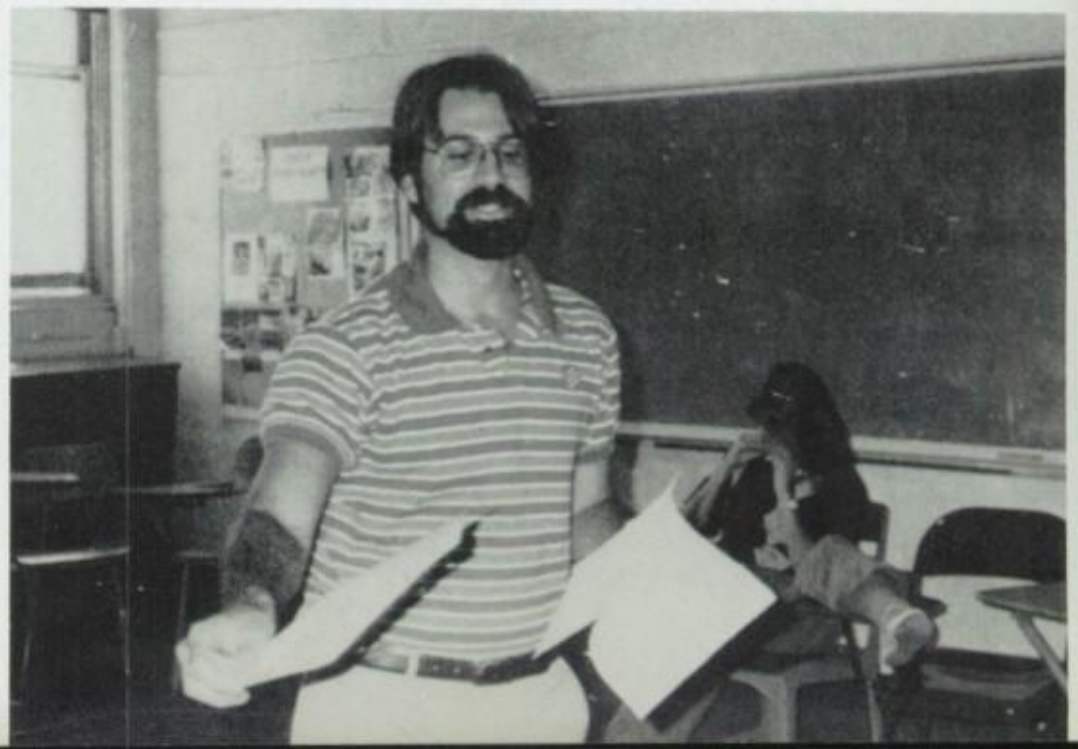
The question that I have never been able to answer despite my 30 years of research into the nature of the feminine soul is: What does a woman want?
— Sigmund Freud



They're not allowed to do that, are they?



Everything, sometimes

Everything seems to be slipping away.
The ground I make with a girl is lost the next day.
Everyone is changing, myself included.
Dreams, passionate at night, in the morning are diluted.
My friends don't really know me anymore, save a few.
Sometimes I worry about that Sometimes I don't want to.
Only I can really see what's happening to me.
But sometimes I don't want to know
Sometimes I just don't care to see.
I throw myself into harsh winds that blow freely.

VIETNAM

Students of the Vietnam class participated in an assembly to share their final projects amongst themselves. There were many presentations, including: paintings, a dance, a slide show, music, poetry readings and excerpts from papers. The assembly ended with a Vietnamese meal.

Viet Nam February 1967

Air heavy with and humidity,
Sky full of ominous clouds,
Dank smell of refuse,
Mosquitoes and flies like carpets on the wind.
Patchwork quilt of rice paddies,
Winding rivers and swollen streams,
Water buffalo lumbering through the fields,
High mountains on the horizon.
Thundering roar of aircraft on the prowl,
Roads clogged with troops and trucks,
Distant growl of artillery,
Crackling whine of small arms.
Ramshackle busses crammed with people,
Bamboo huts with straw thatched roofs,
Women bearing baskets from the market,
A ragged child stares at passing soldiers.

Monkey

Hanging limp
From a broad limb,
Looking at me.
The curvature of his wrist
His powerful arm,
Covered by a jungle of hair.
His eyes are brown,
Brown as his coat
Looking at me.
I have seen his eyes before,
Many times,
But when
And how
I do not know
A relative
A friend
No.
I look further
He looks further
Brown, dark,
No answer.
"Who are you?"
I scream
I sense that he is trying to tell me
But I cannot hear.
I go
Bewildered
And then I remember,
What I saw
Was a Reflection
Of the people that
Surround me,
An image of what
Knowledge and wisdom
Evolved from.
I turn around.
He is looking
At me.
"Thank you."

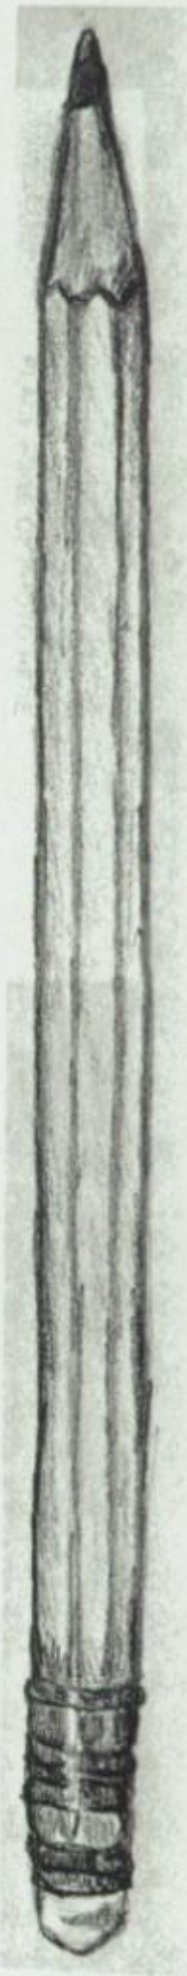
See With Me

Come sit,
same bench as I,
for I,
am lonely.
Watch with me,
of things that pass,
interest and humor,
whatever catches the eye,
walk with me,
down road and path,
stone and brick,
see sights,
never seen before,
or again,
on my magical path,
for I am lonely.
Drink of my mind,
all knowledge is yours,
nothing lost,
no harm,
all you must do,
is come sit,
same bench as I,
for I, too,
am lonely.

by Eve Bernstein



There's no concern
For lines of white
That strike my mind
And make me fight
    Spinning heads
That will not fall
    Feelings dead
Are quickly called
We lounge around
With secret keys
That make no sound
But sometimes please
Life is brave
A fearless stand
That softly slaves
To my command

by Jonathan Manitsky

Waking

Oh stop!
Go away,
do not wake me.
Let me rest
in the peaceful pillow
for a few more minutes.
NO.
Oh, don't be cruel,
my day,
will not be a good one,
if you wake me now.
So please let me rest.
NO.
Oh, "DAMN YOU!"
And I am up,
in my empty room.

Life

Life's made for living,
And giving and sharing
Knowing and showing,
And daring and caring.
Life's made for doing,
Pursuing of dreams,
Sowing and growing,

Revealing and feeling,
And finding that you

To make it come true.

LA BEAUTÉ
Je suis belle, ô mortels! comme un rêve de pierre,
Et mon sein, ou chacun s'est meurtri tour à tour,
Est fait pour inspirer au poète un amour
Eternel et muet ainsi que la matière.

Je trône dans l'azur comme un sphinx incompris;
J'unis un coeur de neige à la blancheur des cygnes;
Je hais le mouvement qui deplace les lignes,
Et jamais je ne pleure et jamais je ne ris.
Les poétes devant mes grandes attitudes,
Que j'ai l'air d'emprunter aux plus fiers monuments,
Consumeront leurs jours en d'austeres études;

Car, j'ai, pour fasciner ces dociles amants,
De purs miroirs qui font toutes choses plus belles:
Mes yeux, mes larges yeux aux clartés éternelles.
— Charles Baudelaire (1821-1867)

BEAUTY
I'm so beautiful, oh mortals! Like a stone statue
Against whose breast one kills himself, to each his turn,
Made to inspire love in the poet, too,
Eternal and silent as is matter firm.

I reign in the blue above like some misunderstood sphinx;
And I unite a heart of snow to the whiteness of swans;
I hate all movement which displaces line,
And never do I laugh and never am I wan.

Poets, before my grandiose ways,
Which I seem to lend to their proudest monuments.
Will devour their days to my austere research;

For I, to fascinate these docile lovers,
Use bright mirrors making all things more beautiful:
My eyes, my big, wide eyes where clarity is most eternal.

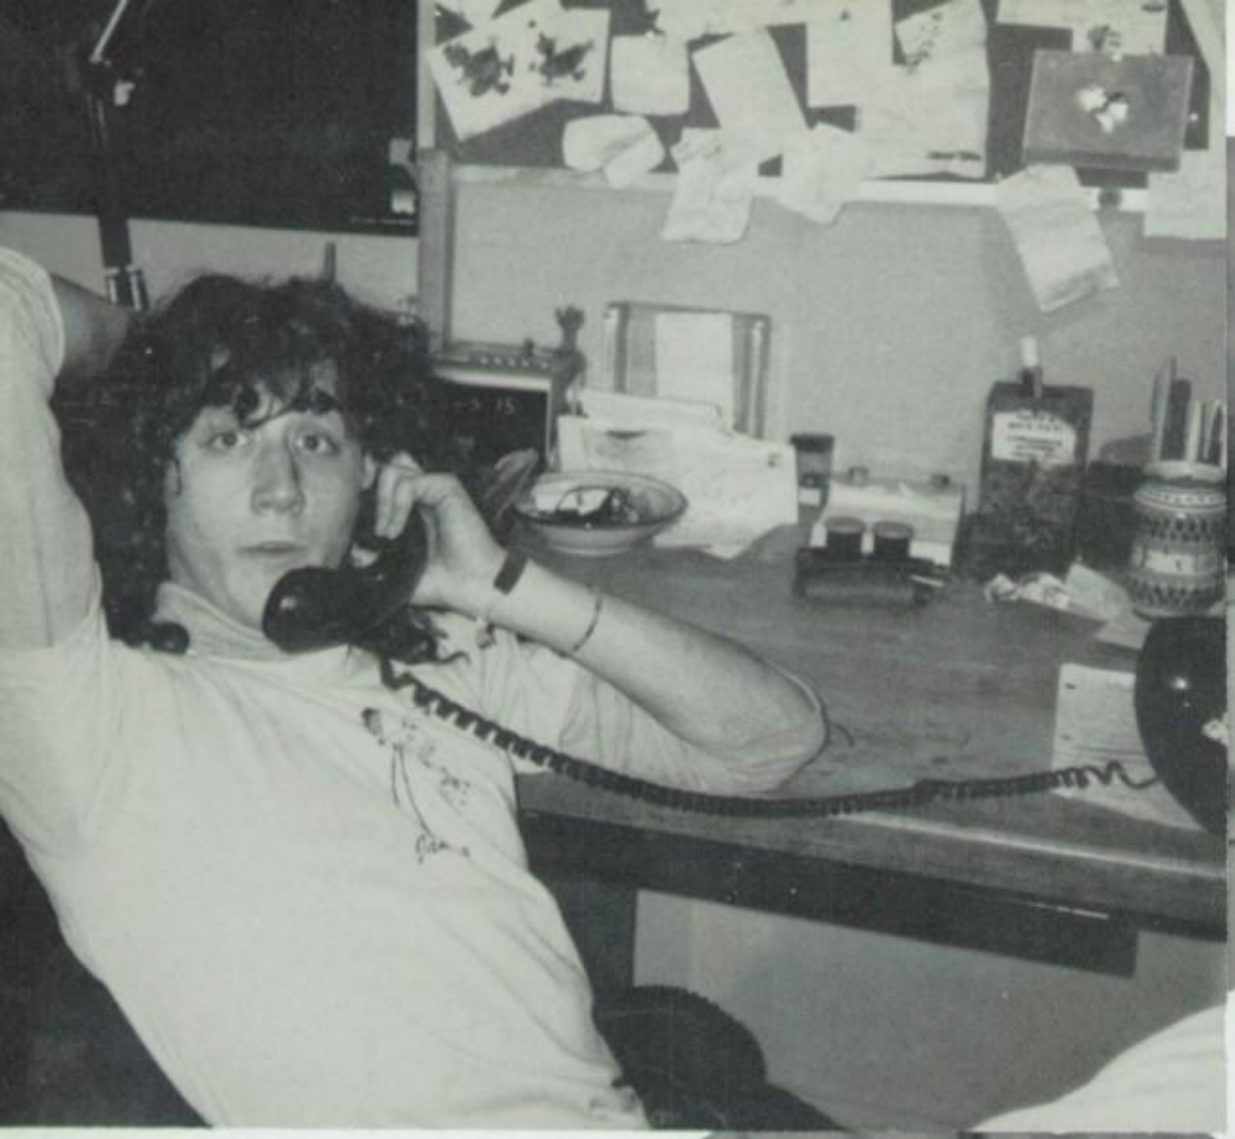
Old paint on canvas, as it ages, sometimes becomes transparent. When that happens it is possible, in some pictures, to see the original lines: a tree will show through a woman's dress, a child makes way for a dog, a large boat is no longer on an open sea. That is called pentimento because the painter "repented," changed his mind. Perhaps it would be as well to say that the old conception, replaced by a later choice, is a way of seeing and then seeing again. — Lillian Hellman

In time, the paint will have aged and I will look back to this book to see what was there for me once, what is there for me now.



Blossom, there's a sweet dream on my mind. There's a song inside me, take these chains away!

A box of rain will ease the pain and love will see you through . . . Some folks look for answers others look for fights, some folks love the tree tops just lookin' for their kites. Well I can tell your future, oh look what's in your hands, I can't stop nothin', I'm just playin' in the band . . . A shark's got cold eyes. Hunter Garcia

When I was just a little young boy, Pappa said, "son, you'll never go far. I'll tell you the reason if you want to know, cause child of mine, there isn't really very far to go." . . . Comes a time, when the blind man takes your hand, says: Don't ya' see, gotta' make it somehow, on the dreams you still believe . . . You can borrow from the devil, you can borrow from a friend, the devil'll give ya' twenty, but your friend's got only ten . . . I'd rather be a free man in my grave than living as a puppet or a slave . . . See here how everything lead up to this day, and it's just like any other day that's ever been, sun goin' up, and then the sun it goin' down, shine through my window, and my friends they come around . . . Hunter-Garcia

There are more things in heaven and earth, Horatio, than are dreamt of in your philosophy.
— Shakespeare

He who obtains has little
He who scatters has much . . .

I get crazy in the sunshine, yes indeed must be gettin' early, clocks are runnin' late, paint by numbers mornin' sky, it'sall fallin', dawn is breakin' everywhere, light a candle — curse the glare — draw the curtains — I don't care. It's all right — it's all right . . . Rejoice, rejoice, we have no choice but to carry on . . . Stuck in this old city, people have to call it home, they're the ones I really pity . . . I'd rather wake up in the middle of your land, this land is my land, from California to the New York islands. From the redwood forests to the gulf stream waters. This land was made for you and me. Hunter-Garcia

There is no why can't you be serious . . . FEH . . . friends are the jelly on the peanut butter of life . . . in a cold world you need your friends to keep you warm . . . they say that in the spring a young man's fancy turns to thoughts of love, perhaps if he has time enough left over, his fancy can even make room for a cup of coffee . . . The sun's gonna' shine in my backdoor, someday . . . Hunter-Garcia

Jennifer Majewski

So that's why I'm here, the bleeding boat drifted off and I'm stuck here in the pissing rain with my life flashing before me. Only it isn't flashing, it's crawling. Slowly. Now it's just the bare bones of what I am.

A tough guy, a helpless dancer.
A romantic, is it me for a moment?
A bloody lunatic, I'll even carry your bags.
A beggar, a hypocrite, love reign over me.
Schizophrenic? I'm bleeding Quadrophenic.

You are responsible for your own life.

In the myriad rivers of emotions, idea and impulse that comprise your consciousness there will always eventually flash the brite creature you seek, however small. You must seek him and, by honoring him with action, make him grow and multiply.

You can do it . . .

The Coady Family

To Our Beautiful Daughter, Dale.
What can we say? We have watched you grow from an adorable baby, into a beautiful young lady. Words cannot express how proud we are to have you as our daughter, knowing that whatever you decide to do, you will succeed, because that's the type of young lady you are growing up to be.

So here's to you sweetheart. Life is no bowl of cherries dear, it has it's ups and downs . . . There has to be some darkness, so the sun will shine again.

The love of God is divine that is beyond what words can define.
Never forget and keep in mind,
Good things come to those who are always kind.
May you accomplish your goal,
Love you,
Mommie + Daddy

Dear sis,

I'll always be there for you . . . remember I love you, and keep on pushing until you reach the highest mountains. Got for the top kid!!!
